A Guide to Breakdown Insurance

The insurers featured in QuickPages offer a range of policies and benefits to the over 50s. Here are a few hints to help you get the best deal:

We don't realise how much we depend on our trusty motors until the unthinkable happens. It breaks down at home causing you to miss that all important meeting, or you find yourself stranded, alone and vulnerable, in the middle or nowhere or on some hard shoulder or another. Either way, help is available from a whole host of breakdown insurance companies, at very reasonable prices with a good range of policies.

Choosing the best policy for your needs is important, there are different policy options offering varying levels of cover available.

You can decide whether you want to cover the vehicle or the person. Covering the vehicle means anyone driving it will be covered, regardless of whether they are the policyholder or not. Covering the person means you're insured as the driver or passenger of any vehicle, and although it is typically more expensive than vehicle cover, it is handy if you drive several vehicles.

Cover is available from the very basic cover through to a very comprehensive service offering alternative transport or hotel accommodation.

And, depending on which cover you have specified, you can add another vehicle or person on to your policy, providing they are registered at the same address as yourself. In some cases partners can be added to your policy free of charge.

Breakdown Insurance Checklist

Before choosing a policy ask yourself the following:

Have you decided on whether you want Vehicle or Personal cover?

Have you decide on the level of cover you require? (e.g. Home Start, Roadside assistance)
